A Guide to the Public Law Outline

August 2016 v 1

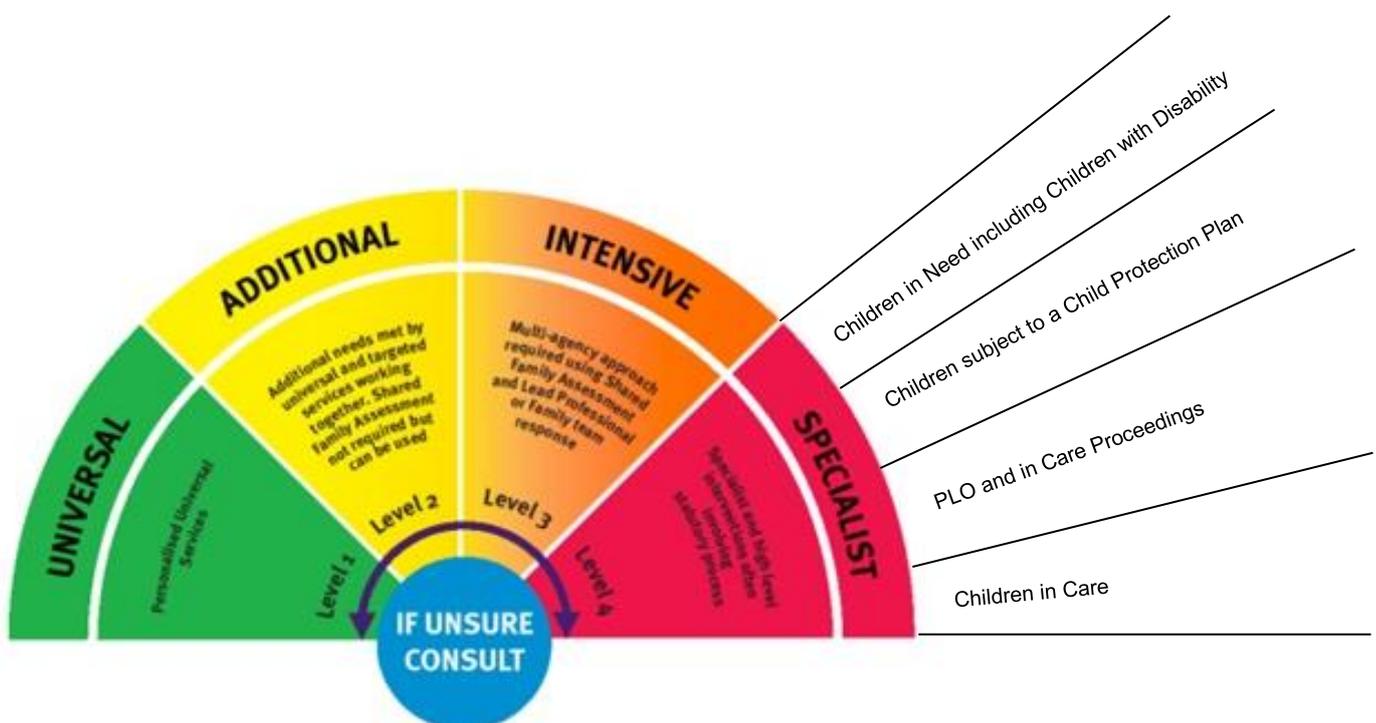

What is the Public Law Outline (PLO)?

The Public Law Outline (PLO) is a Practice Direction under the Family Procedure Rules which are mandatory court rules. This sets out what should happen before care proceedings are issued, the processes that the courts and court practitioner should follow during proceedings and also complies with the statutory 26 weeks' timescale in the amended Children Act within which all care proceedings should be concluded. The overriding objectives are to work in partnership with children and their families; aiming for clarity and transparency around the potential need for care proceedings and where possible to avoid the need to issue proceedings.

The key aims to be achieved through the PLO are:

- Helping families – giving families a final opportunity to make changes to avoid care proceedings and helping them fully understand the consequence of care proceedings.
- Better informed resolution – ensuring applications to court are made after all safe and appropriate alternatives have been explored but so as to avoid harmful delay.
- Preparation for proceedings – improving the quality and consistency by undertaking assessments before court.
- During proceedings – improved case management.
- Inter-agency working – ensuring closer professional relationships

When would PLO be used pre proceedings?

PLO pre proceedings can be used with families where there is ongoing risk of significant harm that is not reducing and where the Child Protection Plan is not supporting the family to make sustained change. PLO pre-proceedings work can only be commenced if the threshold for issuing care proceedings is met.

The Children Act 1989

Section 31(2) A court may only make a care order or supervision order if it is satisfied:

(a) that the child concerned is suffering, or is likely to suffer, significant harm;
and

(b) that the harm, or likelihood of harm, is attributable to:

(i) the care given to the child, or likely to be given to him if the order were not made, not being what it would be reasonable to expect a parent to give to him; or

(ii) the child's being beyond parental control.

There may be some circumstances when working under a Child In Need plan risk of harm increases and it is felt necessary to convene a Child Protection Conference and enter PLO pre proceedings in parallel but this would be unusual.

What happens under PLO pre proceedings?

The PLO process requires the Children's Social Care (CSC) to arrange a meeting with the parent(s) and their solicitor to see if it is possible to reach agreement about what needs to change to protect the child/ren from significant harm. This will be set out in a "Letter Before Proceedings". The parents are entitled to publically funded legal representation (free legal aid) and therefore they attend the meeting with a solicitor. The solicitor will be able to help the parents to fairly negotiate an agreement with CSC to try to avoid the need to go to court. This formal meeting is known as a 'pre-proceedings meeting' or PLO meeting. The Pre-proceedings/PLO meeting will set out and decide:-

- What work has been done to assist the family,
- What needs to change and the timescale for change,
- Who will provide the help to make those changes and
- What additional information or assessments are needed to understand why progress is not being made, these will also assist the court to make its decisions if care proceedings are still necessary.

Who decides to initiate the PLO process?

The decision to enter the PLO pre proceedings process is made at a Legal Planning Meeting which is chaired by a Service Manager from Family Operations. The Social Worker will present the case with support from the Team Manager and Essex Legal Service will provide advice on whether the S.31 threshold has been met and whether there is a need for an order or not. Thought must be given to what the long term care plan would be for children and if issuing care proceedings will be successful in reducing risk. Experience shows that for some older children placements away from their family does not always reduce risk and can introduce new risk such as frequent missing periods.

How does PLO link with Multi-Agency Child Protections Plans?

At a Review Child Protection Conference (RCPC) the Child Protection Plan is always reviewed to see what progress has been made. If progress is not sufficient then the Child Protection Plan should be reviewed and amended. However, if professionals at a RCPC believe the plan is not sufficiently managing risk and the prognosis for change is limited they can recommend progressing to PLO. As stated above the decision to begin the PLO process does remain with Family Operations and if the Legal Planning Meeting does not recommend progression to PLO the reasons for that decision will be fed back to professionals at the next Core Group meeting.

When does PLO end?

Hopefully the PLO process will end when the family have made the changes needed and completed the work that was set out and agreed in the PLO process. This is entirely in keeping with the PLO ethos. However, there will be times where co-operation from parents is still not forthcoming through the PLO process and where risks are not reduced or mitigated. If this happens a further Legal Planning Meeting will be held where Children's Social Care Service Manager will consider whether legal action should be taken to safeguard the children. This decision does need to be approved at Children's Social Care Care and Resource Panel or by the Director of Local Delivery.
